Well, the interesting place I want to talk about is Tokyo, Japan—I went there last April, and back then, I was working as a fashion buyer.

First off, I went for my job: I visited all the high-end malls in Tokyo, like Ginza. I spent 3 whole days picking sample clothes for my brand—Ginza's designer stores have unique

What really stood out to me was the local fashion taste. Whether it was older ladies or young girls, their outfits were so elegant and stylish. A 60-something woman I saw wore a tailored coat with tiny accessories—she looked so put-together, and that gave me tons of work ideas.

Also, Tokyo's vibe impressed me: everywhere was spotlessly clean, and people were super polite. When I was in a mall elevator, the staff there smiled, bowed, and even wore a tailored coat with tiny accessories—she looked so put-together, and that gave me tons of work ideas.

Also, Tokyo's vibe impressed me: everywhere was spotlessly clean, and people were super polite. When I was in a mall elevator, the staff there smiled, bowed, and even held the door and pressed the floor button for me—small things like that made the trip feel really nice.

Overall, Tokyo's great for me: not just for work, but the fashion energy and the thoughtful little moments made it a really memorable trip.

点题: Called Altay Snow Hub, the specialized snowboarding gear store I frequent is nestled in Altay, Xinjiang, just 100 meters from the gondola station of General Mountain Ski Resort, a location that makes it effortlessly accessible.

I make a point to stop by every December, when the snow season hits its peak; this visit typically aligns with my annual arrival at the resort for a week of skiing.

多维度展开 I love this shop because it stocks niche, high-quality gear, for example, they have fleece-lined, windproof gloves that keep my hands warm even in -20°C weather, and anti-fog ski goggles tailored for bright snow days. Also, the owner is a former professional skier—he gives personalized recommendations based on my skill level.

Most importantly, it's a hub for local skiers: we chat about slope conditions while picking gear, which helps me find the best runs each day.
